You have got a lot of fun with your long-distance enduro on the streets already, but would also like to check out what riding off the road feels like, then this is the right training for you.

Enduro Training for big travel Enduros

Large long-distance enduros are fantastic machines, you can easily ride long tours with them and even when the roads aren't the best, they are a reliable partner. If however you would also like to take them off-road, some people question what a long-distance enduro can really do in uneven terrain. This question will be answered in our long-distance enduro training.

Experienced coaches enable you to steadily conquer more difficult terrain and you will learn, how to maneuver the heavy machine safely even on such uneven terrain and also, what its limits are.

With your registration, you will also receive tips regarding accommodation.
